

BLACK HISTORY MONTH WITH MFP
Fellow spotlight:  Jerdine Clarke

Current
 Currently, I am involved in a project with The Carl B. Metoyer Center for Family Counseling in Oakland, CA working to develop a model to help families who have experienced parental incarceration.

About
 Jerdine Clarke is one of our MHSAS doctoral students. Having graduated from UC Berkeley in 2014, she is now a fourth year student in the APA accredited PsyD program in Clinical Psychology at The Wright Institute. Her research interests include improving the clinical outcomes for African American girls who have been or are being commercially sexually exploited through more effective diagnosis and the development of evidence-based trauma-informed treatment protocols.

Honors

- 2013: UC Berkeley - Dean's List
- 2013: SFDA's Office (DA George Gascon)- Recognition for community work on
- National Crime Victims' Rights.
- 2009: SFDA's Office (DA Kamala Harris)- Recognition for community work on National Crime Victims' Rights.

"I want to deliver services that provide culturally competent care to black populations. I believe that collaborating with established local churches, schools, organizations, and medical providers will ensure effective, culturally relevant integrative community practices. Our stories transcend ethnicity, politics, geography, culture, and sexuality and have the power to unite and uplift. This is how we overcome. This is how we maintain hope. "

2

BLACK HISTORY MONTH WITH MFP
Fellow spotlight:  Jerdine Clarke

Current
 Currently, I am involved in a project with The Carl B. Metoyer Center for Family Counseling in Oakland, CA working to develop a model to help families who have experienced parental incarceration.

About
 Jerdine Clarke is one of our MHSAS doctoral students. Having graduated from UC Berkeley in 2014, she is now a fourth year student in the APA accredited PsyD program in Clinical Psychology at The Wright Institute. Her research interests include improving the clinical outcomes for African American girls who have been or are being commercially sexually exploited through more effective diagnosis and the development of evidence-based trauma-informed treatment protocols.

Honors

- 2013: UC Berkeley - Dean's List
- 2013: SFDA's Office (DA George Gascon)- Recognition for community work on
- National Crime Victims' Rights.
- 2009: SFDA's Office (DA Kamala Harris)- Recognition for community work on National Crime Victims' Rights.

"I want to deliver services that provide culturally competent care to black populations. I believe that collaborating with established local churches, schools, organizations, and medical providers will ensure effective, culturally relevant integrative community practices. Our stories transcend ethnicity, politics, geography, culture, and sexuality and have the power to unite and uplift. This is how we overcome. This is how we maintain hope. "

2

BLACK HISTORY MONTH WITH MFP
Fellow spotlight:  Jerdine Clarke

Current
 Currently, I am involved in a project with The Carl B. Metoyer Center for Family Counseling in Oakland, CA working to develop a model to help families who have experienced parental incarceration.

About
 Jerdine Clarke is one of our MHSAS doctoral students. Having graduated from UC Berkeley in 2014, she is now a fourth year student in the APA accredited PsyD program in Clinical Psychology at The Wright Institute. Her research interests include improving the clinical outcomes for African American girls who have been or are being commercially sexually exploited through more effective diagnosis and the development of evidence-based trauma-informed treatment protocols.

Honors

- 2013: UC Berkeley - Dean's List
- 2013: SFDA's Office (DA George Gascon)- Recognition for community work on
- National Crime Victims' Rights.
- 2009: SFDA's Office (DA Kamala Harris)- Recognition for community work on National Crime Victims' Rights.

"I want to deliver services that provide culturally competent care to black populations. I believe that collaborating with established local churches, schools, organizations, and medical providers will ensure effective, culturally relevant integrative community practices. Our stories transcend ethnicity, politics, geography, culture, and sexuality and have the power to unite and uplift. This is how we overcome. This is how we maintain hope. "

2

